

BIOGRAPHIES

Most of the biographies in the Newton Collection tend to be appreciations, memorials, and reminiscences of people who have spent a significant part of their lives in Newton. People, such as John Eliot, the Apostle of the Indians, the Rev. Daniel Little Furber, minister of the First Church in Newton, Walter Hill Holbrook, successful cotton textile industrialist, the Rev. Samuel Francis Smith, ordained minister, noted historian and author of the national hymn "America," Charles Johnson Maynard, noted ornithologist, John Ryan, Custer's first sergeant, Louise Imogen Guiney, nationally known poet and postmistress of Auburndale, and the Honorable Theodore D. Mann, Mayor of Newton for 22 years, are some of the names represented in the biography collection. Shorter biographical information on notable Newton residents is found in a great number of cataloged newspaper articles.

These cataloged newspaper articles are in the Newton biography card index file on the left as you enter the Special Collections Room. The card file is located in the drawers immediately to the right of the Newton subject card file index.

The biography index contains citations to newspapers, periodicals and books in the Newton and Reference Collections about Newton residents (past and present).

The subject and biography card indexes were closed on December 31, 1999. Please refer to the Newton News Index here for citations to news articles starting from January 1, 1999 to present along with the online catalog.

NEWTON/Special: N 711.4 H53T

Collection consists of an obituary, research notes, photocopies of journal articles, newspaper articles and book excerpts, photocopies of portrait photographs, house floor plans and genealogical data.

Collection of material concerning two prominent Newton women who influenced the development of Newton Highlands in the late 1800s. Susannah M. Duncklee was a schoolteacher, worked in a variety store, became assistant treasurer, then treasurer of Newton Savings Bank. She bought and developed property in Newton Highlands. She lived in Newton and moved to Roxbury, Massachusetts after retirement. Annie Cobb (Margaretta "Anna" Cobb) was a self-taught architect and house designer who built many houses in Newton Highlands. She married Sewall Chapman Cobb and had a daughter, Annie Raeburn Cobb Logan. She was active in the Monday Club and the D.A.R. Much of the collection is research notes on the two women, but the bulk is about Annie Cobb-her houses, family and civic involvement.

Summary Collection consists of sepia photographs mounted on cardboard.

The Newell family of Newton, Massachusetts typifies the transition of a family of farmers into industrialists. The collection centers on George Franklin Newell (1850-1934) - photographs of himself, the Connecticut River at Turners Falls, Massachusetts, the hardware store where he worked as a teenager in Greenfield, Massachusetts, the Newell and Plimpton family house at 87 Chestnut Street in West Newton, Massachusetts and the grounds and outbuildings on that property. Newell was born on July 4, 1850 in Colrain, Massachusetts, attended Highland Military Academy in Worcester, Massachusetts, and worked at the hardware store of S. Allen's Sons in Greenfield and at the New Home Sewing Machine Company in Orange, Massachusetts. In 1872 he married Homera Vaughan of Homer, Louisiana and had 3 sons, Frank G. Newell, Clarence C. Newell, and Eugene Newell. Eugene drowned in 1903 at Turners Falls.) He moved to West Newton, Massachusetts around 1882 and invented the machine for cutting and covering boot and shoe web-strap, which he developed into the George F. Newell Manufacturing Company of Boston and ran for 47 years. In 1883 he married Clara E. Plimpton of West Newton and had 2 children, Channing P. Newell and Florence Newell (Mrs. Winslow D. Robinson.)

N 973.82 R95G 1992 (Also Microform)

This magazine contains a very important article, including many photographs of Newton's own John Ryan. John Ryan, born in 1845 in West Newton, had two very important careers; first a military career in which his campaigns rivaled Custer's campaigns, and second a police career, which began at age 31 with the Newton Police Department, and ended with his retirement from the force after having achieved the rank of Captain.

N 973.82 R95T (Also Microform)

A reading copy of a narrative of John Ryan's experiences as a sergeant in the United States Cavalry. First published in installments in the West Newton Weekly and later in the Newton Town Crier. The series was apparently never completely published, since four installments are missing. John Ryan, born in West Newton in 1845, enlisted in the Union Army during the Civil War (in which he was wounded four times), and later enlisted again to fight in the Indian Wars out west. His adventures over, Ryan returned to Newton, and joined the Newton Police force. In spite of a number of physical ailments attributed by him to his military service, Ryan lived to the ripe old age of 81.
